

Lyme Land Trust

Though the coronavirus pandemic has prevented us from having our usual variety of events, we are providing other ways for us to connect with you. We are creating virtual guided walks of our preserves by local experts; go to our website and click Explore to learn more. Tuesday Treks meet every week at a different preserve, led by either staff or a board member. We have a new website, Imagining Lyme, a visual exploration of our preserves: imagininglyme.org! In December, we began a 52-trail challenge to hike all the trails in Lyme; we already have 9 people who have finished! We hope you have had the opportunity to enjoy our open spaces – Winter is a beautiful time to go for a hike! There are many trails to choose from and you can find out more on our website: lymelandtrust.org.

Most recently, a generous donor has given us 180 acres of land on which we are now doing a natural resources study to determine the best way to manage this preserve. This parcel connects with large swaths of protected land that provide an important wildlife corridor.

Our primary mission continues to be preserving land. To ensure permanence, it is very important we remain strong and maintain our ability to protect what has been conserved.
